

PILLSBURY WINTHROP SHAW PITTMAN LLP

BRUCE A. ERICSON #76342

DAVID L. ANDERSON #149604

JACOB R. SORESENSEN #209134

MARC H. AXELBAUM #209855

DANIEL J. RICHERT #232208

50 Fremont Street

Post Office Box 7880

San Francisco, CA 94120-7880

Telephone: (415) 983-1000

Facsimile: (415) 983-1200

Email: bruce.ericson@pillsburylaw.com

SIDLEY AUSTIN LLP

DAVID W. CARPENTER (admitted pro hac vice)BRADFORD A. BERENSON (admitted pro hac vice)DAVID L. LAWSON (admitted pro hac vice)EDWARD R. MCNICHOLAS (admitted pro hac vice)

ERIC A. SHUMSKY #206164

1501 K Street, N.W.

Washington, D.C. 20005

Telephone: (202) 736-8010

Facsimile: (202) 736-8711

Attorneys for AT&T Defendants

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
SAN FRANCISCO DIVISION

In re:

NATIONAL SECURITY AGENCY TELE-COMMUNICATIONS RECORDS LITIGA-TION

This Document Relates To:

Clayton, et al. v. AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc., et al., No. 07-1187

MDL Dkt. No. 06-1791-VRW

MOTION OF DEFENDANTS AT&T
COMMUNICATIONS OF SOUTHWEST,
INC., ET AL. TO DISMISS PLAINTIFFS'
APPLICATION TO COMPEL; SUP-PORTING MEMORANDUM

[Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6)]

Date: June 14, 2007

Time: 2 p.m.

Courtroom: 6, 17th Floor

Judge: Hon. Vaughn R. Walker

Filed concurrently:

1. Proposed Order

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Page
TABLE OF AUTHORITIES.....	ii
NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION TO DISMISS.....	viii
MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES.....	1
INTRODUCTION.....	1
BACKGROUND.....	3
ARGUMENT	5
I. STATE AUTHORITIES LACK POWER UNDER THE CONSTITUTION TO OVERSEE OR INVESTIGATE ALLEGED FEDERAL INTELLIGENCE ACTIVITIES	5
II. FEDERAL STATUTES PROHIBIT THE PLAINTIFFS’ ATTEMPTS TO COMPEL DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION REGARDING TELECOMMUNICATIONS CARRIERS’ ALLEGED ASSISTANCE TO THE NSA	12
III. BECAUSE FEDERAL STATUTES OCCUPY THE FIELD OF TELECOMMUNICATIONS CARRIERS’ ALLEGED ASSISTANCE TO THE NSA, THE SUBPOENAS ARE PREEMPTED	16
IV. ENFORCEMENT OF THE SUBPOENAS IS PREEMPTED BY FEDERAL COMMON LAW.....	18
V. PLAINTIFFS DO NOT HAVE AUTHORITY UNDER STATE LAW TO ENFORCE THE SUBPOENAS IN ANY EVENT.....	21
CONCLUSION	24

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

CASES

ACLU v. NSA , 438 F. Supp. 2d 754 (E.D. Mich. 2006), appeal docketed , Nos. 06-2099, 06-2140 (6th Cir. Aug. 17, 2006)	20
AMCA Int’l Corp. v. Krouse , 482 F. Supp. 929 (S.D. Ohio 1979)	19
Am. Ins. Ass’n v. Garamendi , 539 U.S. 396 (2003)	3, 7
Asbestos Worker Syracuse Pension Fund ex rel. Collins v. M.G. Indus. Insulation Co. , 875 F. Supp. 132 (N.D.N.Y. 1995)	24
Balcorta v. Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. , 208 F.3d 1102 (9th Cir. 2000)	17
Bonito Boats, Inc. v. Thunder Craft Boats, Inc. , 489 U.S. 141 (1989)	15
Boudette v. Barnette , 923 F.2d 754 (9th Cir. 1991)	13
Boyle v. United Techs. Corp. , 487 U.S. 500 (1988)	18
Brooks v. Pool-Leffler , 636 S.W.2d 113 (Mo. Ct. App. 1982), recognized as abrogated by statute on other grounds, Gerlach v. Mo. Comm’n on Human Rights , 980 S.W.2d 589 (Mo. Ct. App. 1998)	22, 23, 24
Chlorine Inst. Inc. v. Cal. Highway Patrol , 29 F.3d 495 (9th Cir. 1994)	15
City of Richmond Heights v. Bd. of Equalization , 586 S.W.2d 338 (Mo. 1979)	22
Coburn v. Coleman , 75 F. Supp. 107 (W.D.S.C. 1947)	21, 24
Crosby v. Nat’l Foreign Trade Council , 530 U.S. 363 (2000)	15
Deutsch v. Turner Corp. , 324 F.3d 692 (9th Cir. 2003)	2, 8, 9
El-Masri v. United States , ___ F.3d ___, 2007 WL 625130 (4th Cir. Mar. 2, 2007)	21
English v. Gen. Elec. Co. , 496 U.S. 72 (1990)	16

1	Fla. Lime & Avocado Growers, Inc. v. Paul ,
2	373 U.S. 132 (1963)	2
3	Founding Church of Scientology v. NSA ,
4	610 F.2d 824 (D.C. Cir. 1979).....	13
5	Hagely v. Bd. of Educ. ,
6	841 S.W.2d 663 (Mo. 1992).....	22
7	Hayden v. NSA ,
8	608 F.2d 1381 (D.C. Cir. 1979).....	13
9	Hepting v. AT&T Corp. ,
10	439 F. Supp. 2d 974 (N.D. Cal. 2006), appeal docketed ,
11	Nos. 06-60809, 06-60810 (9th Cir. Aug. 1, 2006)	19, 20
12	Hillsborough County v. Auto. Med. Labs. ,
13	471 U.S. 707 (1985)	3, 12
14	Hines v. Davidowitz ,
15	312 U.S. 52 (1941)	2, 6, 7
16	Kasza v. Browner ,
17	133 F.3d 1159 (9th Cir. 1998)	19
18	Linder v. NSA ,
19	94 F.3d 693 (D.C. Cir. 1996).....	13
20	MITE Corp. v. Dixon ,
21	633 F.2d 486 (7th Cir. 1980), aff'd on other grounds sub nom.
22	Edgar v. MITE Corp. , 457 U.S. 624 (1982).....	18
23	McCulloch v. Maryland ,
24	17 U.S. (4 Wheat.) 316 (1819)	9
25	In re Miles ,
26	430 F.3d 1083 (9th Cir. 2005)	17
27	Moore v. Mitchell ,
28	281 U.S. 18 (1930)	24
	Murphy v. Waterfront Comm'n ,
	378 U.S. 52 (1964)	16
	Muskovich v. Crowell ,
	No. 3-95-CV-80007, 1995 WL 905403 (S.D. Iowa Mar. 21, 1995)	17
	In Re NSA Telecomm. Records Litig. ,
	No. 06-1791-VRW, 2007 WL 163106 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 18, 2007).....	17, 20
	N.Y. Times Co. v. United States ,
	403 U.S. 713 (1971)	8

1	Nat'l Foreign Trade Council v. Natsios,
2	181 F.3d 38 (1st Cir. 1999), aff'd on other grounds sub nom.
3	Crosby v. Nat'l Foreign Trade Council , 530 U.S. 363 (2000).....	7
4	New SD, Inc. v. Rockwell Int'l Corp.,
5	79 F.3d 953 (9th Cir. 1996)	19
6	North Dakota v. United States,
7	495 U.S. 423 (1990)	11
8	Perpich v. Dep't of Def.,
9	496 U.S. 334 (1990)	6
10	Quon v. Arch Wireless Operating Co.,
11	445 F. Supp. 2d 1116 (C.D. Cal. 2006)	17
12	Rackley v. Firemen's Ret. Sys.,
13	848 S.W.2d 26 (Mo. Ct. App. 1993)	22
14	Sperry v. Florida,
15	373 U.S. 379 (1963)	14
16	State ex rel. City of Blue Springs v. Rice,
17	853 S.W.2d 918 (Mo. 1993)	23
18	State ex rel. Philipp Transit Lines, Inc. v. Pub. Serv. Comm'n,
19	552 S.W.2d 696 (Mo. 1977)	23
20	Stehney v. Perry,
21	101 F.3d 925 (3d Cir. 1996)	7, 10, 11
22	Sterling v. Tenet,
23	416 F.3d 338 (4th Cir. 2005), cert. denied,
24	126 S. Ct. 1052 (2006)	20
25	Sullivan v. Am. Airlines, Inc.,
26	424 F.3d 267 (2d Cir. 2005)	17
27	Superior Minerals Co. v. Mo. Pac. R.R.,
28	45 S.W.2d 912 (Mo. Ct. App. 1932)	24
29	In re Tarble,
30	80 U.S. (13 Wall.) 397 (1871)	10
31	Tenet v. Doe,
32	544 U.S. 1 (2005)	21
33	Terkel v. AT&T Corp.,
34	441 F. Supp. 2d 899 (N.D. Ill. 2006)	20
35	Totten v. United States,
36	92 U.S. 105 (1875)	3, 20, 21
37	In re United States,
38	872 F.2d 472 (D.C. Cir. 1989)	20

1	United States v. Adams ,
2	— F. Supp. 2d —, 2007 WL 441876 (D. Me. filed Feb. 08, 2007)	7, 11
3	United States v. Belmont ,
4	301 U.S. 324 (1937)	11
5	United States v. Curtiss-Wright Exp. Corp. ,
6	299 U.S. 304 (1936)	7, 8
7	United States v. Kimbell Foods ,
8	440 U.S. 715 (1979)	15
9	United States v. Koyomejian ,
10	946 F.2d 1450 (9th Cir. 1992)	15, 17
11	United States v. Maine ,
12	420 U.S. 515 (1975)	6
13	United States v. New Mexico ,
14	455 U.S. 720 (1982)	11
15	United States v. Nixon ,
16	418 U.S. 683 (1974)	19
17	United States v. Pink ,
18	315 U.S. 203 (1942)	7, 9, 10
19	United States v. Reynolds ,
20	345 U.S. 1 (1953)	19
21	United States v. Truong Dinh Hung ,
22	629 F.2d 908 (4th Cir. 1980)	8
23	Wayne v. DHL Worldwide Express ,
24	294 F.3d 1179 (9th Cir. 2002)	17
25	In re World War II Era Japanese Forced Labor Litig. ,
26	164 F. Supp. 2d 1160 (N.D. Cal. 2001), aff'd sub nom.
27	Deutsch v. Turner Corp. , 324 F.3d 692 (9th Cir. 2003)	2, 6, 7, 8, 9
28	Young v. Coloma-Agaran ,
	340 F.3d 1053 (9th Cir. 2003)	12, 14
	Zschernig v. Miller ,
	389 U.S. 429 (1968)	7
	CONSTITUTION AND STATUTES
	U.S. Const. art. I	6
	U.S. Const. art. II	6
	National Security Agency Act of 1959, Pub. L. No. 83-36, 73 Stat. 63	13
	2 U.S.C. §§ 192-194	23

1	2 U.S.C. § 288b(b).....	23
	2 U.S.C. § 288d	23
2	18 U.S.C. § 798	2, 12
	18 U.S.C. § 2510 et seq.	15, 16
3	18 U.S.C. § 2511	16
	18 U.S.C. § 2519	16
4	18 U.S.C. § 2520	16
	18 U.S.C. § 2522	16
5	18 U.S.C. § 2701 et seq.	16
	18 U.S.C. § 2702	16
6	18 U.S.C. § 2703	16
	18 U.S.C. § 2707	16
7
8	28 U.S.C. § 1365	23
	47 U.S.C. §§ 151-152	14
9	47 U.S.C. § 201 et seq.	14
	47 U.S.C. § 1001 et seq.	16
10	47 U.S.C. § 1002	16
	47 U.S.C. § 1004	16
11	47 U.S.C. § 1005	16
12	50 U.S.C. § 402 note	2
	50 U.S.C. § 1801 et seq.	15, 16
13	50 U.S.C. § 1802(a)(4)	16
	50 U.S.C. § 1805(c)(2)(B)	16
14	50 U.S.C. § 1807	15
	50 U.S.C. § 1808	15
15	50 U.S.C. § 1809	16
	50 U.S.C. § 1810	16
16	50 U.S.C. § 1826	15
	50 U.S.C. § 1827	16
17	50 U.S.C. § 1828	16
	50 U.S.C. § 1846	15
18	50 U.S.C. § 1862	15
19	RSMo. § 386.130.....	23
	RSMo. § 386.360.....	23
20	RSMo. § 536.010(4)	22
21	RULES
22	Fed. R. Civ. P. 17(b).....	24
23	Mo. R. Civ. P. 58.01(b)(2).....	21
	Mo. R. Civ. P. 61.01(d)	21
24
25	LEGISLATIVE HISTORY
26	H.R. Rep. No. 103-827, pt. 1 (1994)	16
27	SCHOLARLY AUTHORITIES
28	The Federalist No. 42, (James Madison) (Clinton Rossiter ed., 1961).....	6

1	1	The Records of the Federal Convention of 1787 (Max Farrand ed., rev. ed. 1937).....	6
2	20	Missouri Practice, Administrative Practice & Procedure (4th ed. 2007)	22
3	15	Missouri Practice, Civil Rules Practice (3d ed. 2006)	24
4	5A	Charles A. Wright et al., Federal Practice and Procedure (2d ed. 1990).....	21
5		OTHER AUTHORITIES
6	S. Rule XXVI(1).....		23
7	H.R. Rule XI(2)(m)(1).....		23
8	Press Release, ACLU Launches Nationwide Action Against NSA Snooping on
9	Americans' Phone Calls (May 24, 2006), at www.aclu.org/safefree/nsaspying/25647prs20060524.html		4
10	Jemimah Noonoo, Calling for the Truth: Missouri Wants to Know if Phone Companies
11	Gave Data to NSA , Columbia Missourian, Apr. 2, 2007, available at http://www.columbiamissourian.com/news/story.\php?ID=24997		8

12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION TO DISMISS

TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR COUNSEL OF RECORD:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on June 14, 2007, at 2 p.m., before the Honorable Vaughn R. Walker, United States District Chief Judge, in Courtroom 6, 17th floor, 450 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, California, defendants AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc., SBC Long Distance, LLC, SBC Advanced Solutions, Inc., TCG St. Louis Holdings, Inc. d/b/a TCG St. Louis, Southwestern Bell Telephone, L.P., and TCG Kansas City, Inc. (collectively, “AT&T”), will move and hereby do move, pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6), to dismiss Plaintiffs’ First Amended Application to Compel Production of Documents And To Compel Witnesses to Appear and Answer Questions Upon Oral Examination (Dkt. 1-6) filed by Commissioners of the Missouri Public Service Commission Robert M. Clayton III and Steve Gaw (“Plaintiffs”).

This motion is made on the grounds that Plaintiffs have no authority under the United States Constitution to compel AT&T to disclose information related to an alleged foreign intelligence-gathering program of the National Security Agency (“NSA”); that their effort to do so is preempted by federal statutory and common law; and that the suit is invalid because state law does not authorize the Commissioners to bring this suit.

This motion is based on this notice of motion and motion, the memorandum that follows, all pleadings and records on file in this action, and any other arguments and evidence presented to this Court at or before the hearing on this motion.

ISSUES TO BE DECIDED

1. Do state officials have authority under the United States Constitution to investigate or otherwise oversee alleged federal governmental activity, especially in the context of national defense or foreign intelligence?

2. Does federal statutory and common law preempt Plaintiffs' efforts to enforce their subpoenas seeking information concerning AT&T's alleged foreign intelligence assistance to the National Security Agency?

3. Does state law authorize Plaintiffs to enforce these subpoenas?

1 MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

2 INTRODUCTION

3 Plaintiffs, two of five commissioners of the Missouri Public Service Commission
4 (“PSC”), have issued investigative subpoenas in an effort to discover what assistance
5 AT&T¹ may have provided to the NSA, an agency of the Department of Defense, with re-
6 spect to the NSA’s alleged counterterrorism and foreign intelligence surveillance activi-
7 ties.² Specifically, Plaintiffs seek to require AT&T to testify before the PSC about what is 8 claimed to be a highly classified government program targeting suspected foreign terrorists.
9 They purport to require AT&T to disclose specific operational details about this alleged 10 program, including “[t]he nature or type of information disclosed to the NSA,” when the 11 disclosures were made, how many disclosures occurred, and the legal authority supporting 12 disclosure.³ Subpoena Ad Testificandum ¶¶ 1-4, Clayton v. AT&T Commc’ns of the S.W.,
13 Inc., No. 07-1187, Dkt. 1-3, at 9. Furthermore, these two public utilities commissioners
14 would require AT&T to produce related documents, including “all records” “involving the 15 disclosure of [Customer Proprietary Network Information] to a third party,” including the 16 NSA and other federal government agencies. Subpoena Duces Tecum ¶ 4, Dkt. 1-3, at 12.

17 The Office of the Director of National Intelligence has instructed AT&T that re-
18 sponding to these subpoenas, including admitting or denying whether any disclosures were
19 made, “would violate various specific provisions of federal statutes and Executive Orders.”
20 Letter from Benjamin A. Powell, Gen. Counsel, Office of the Dir. of Nat’l Intelligence, to 21 Edward R. McNicholas (July 11, 2006) (“Powell Letter”), Ex. E, Dkt. 1-37. Plaintiffs
22 nonetheless filed suit to compel compliance. See Pls.’ First Am. Application (“Applica-

23 ¹ Collectively, AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc., SBC Long Distance, LLC, 24 SBC Advanced Solutions, Inc., TCG St. Louis Holdings, Inc. d/b/a TCG St. Louis, Southwestern Bell Telephone, L.P., and TCG Kansas City, Inc.

25 ² The subpoenas are included in Exhibit A to Defendant AT&T Communications of the 26 Southwest, Inc.’s Notice of Removal, Dkt. 1-3 (“Notice of Removal”). For representative samples, see Clayton v. AT&T Comm’ns of S.W., Inc., No. 07-1187, Dkt. 1-3, at 8-10 (Subpoena Ad Testificandum), and id. at 11-13 (Subpoena Duces Tecum).

27 ³ Nothing herein should be construed as an admission or denial by AT&T of its participation”), Ex. A, Dkt. 1-6, at 16-19.
28 tion in any alleged activities by the NSA.

Plaintiffs’ Application must be dismissed for a number of reasons. First and foremost, the subject matter of this litigation—the alleged role of private companies in federal foreign intelligence activities designed to support an ongoing military conflict—is committed exclusively to the federal government by the United States Constitution. See In re World War II Era Japanese Forced Labor Litig., 164 F. Supp. 2d 1160, 1168 (N.D. Cal. 2001) (Walker, J.) (“[T]he national government’s exclusive authority to regulate the foreign affairs of the United States has long been recognized as a constitutional principle of broad scope.”), aff’d sub nom. Deutsch v. Turner Corp., 324 F.3d 692 (9th Cir. 2003); accord Deutsch, 324 F.3d at 711. That these state officials are conducting their investigation into purported federal intelligence activities by targeting the allegedly participating telecommunications carriers rather than the NSA itself does not render the subpoenas any less contrary to principles of federal supremacy and does not alter the fact that States have no authority to regulate, investigate, or oversee the activities of the federal government.

Second, Plaintiffs’ actions are preempted by federal law. Conflict preemption forecloses Plaintiffs’ actions because “compliance with both [the] federal and state regulations is a physical impossibility.” Fla. Lime & Avocado Growers, Inc. v. Paul, 373 U.S. 132, 142-43 (1963). The conflict here could not be clearer: Plaintiffs seek to compel the disclosure of information that federal authorities have instructed AT&T not to disclose, both because it is a federal crime to disclose classified information relating to the communications intelligence activities of the United States, see 18 U.S.C. § 798, and because the National Security Act forbids the disclosure of “any information with respect to the activities” of the NSA, 50 U.S.C. § 402 note (emphasis added). Moreover, because Congress has carefully balanced national security and privacy interests in federal statutes on the same subject, interference in this realm by state authorities acting under state law is preempted because it “stands as an obstacle to the accomplishment and execution of the full purposes and objectives of Congress.” Hines v. Davidowitz, 312 U.S. 52, 67 (1941).

Third, under the Supremacy Clause of the United States Constitution, a field of state

1 law is preempted (including state regulatory actions such as issuing subpoenas, see Am. Ins.
2 Ass'n v. Garamendi, 539 U.S. 396, 411 (2003)), when a “scheme of federal regulation is
3 sufficiently comprehensive to make reasonable the inference that Congress ‘left no room’
4 for supplementary state regulation.” Hillsborough County v. Auto. Med. Labs., 471 U.S.
5 707, 713 (1985). Here, Congress has enacted detailed legislation that regulates the field of 6 telecommunications carriers’ assistance to the federal government in foreign intelligence
7 and counterterrorism surveillance. Accordingly, the subpoenas at issue here and their en-
8 forcement are preempted.

9 Fourth, this suit must be dismissed because federal common law preempts enforce-
10 ment of the subpoenas. Two federal common-law doctrines—the state secrets privilege and 11 the Totten bar, see Totten v. United States, 92 U.S. 105 (1875)—demonstrate that federal 12 common law pervades the uniquely federal realm of foreign intelligence activity. Here, the 13 subpoenas by their terms seek to discover whether or not AT&T assisted the NSA in its for-
14 eign intelligence surveillance activities—the very thing the state secrets privilege and Tot-
15 ten bar forbid.

16 Finally, Plaintiffs’ Application should be dismissed because state law does not au-
17 thorize this action. Plaintiffs filed suit pursuant to RSMo. § 536.077, but that statute only 18 authorizes enforcement of subpoenas issued in contested cases and not, as here, investiga-
19 tive subpoenas. Investigative subpoenas can only be enforced, if at all, pursuant to 20 § 386.360, which requires that enforcement actions be undertaken by the PSC as a whole
21 and not, as here, on the orders of individual commissioners who constitute a minority of the 22 Commission and who do not speak for the entire PSC.

23 BACKGROUND

24 In late 2005 and early 2006, the popular press reported that telecommunications car-
25 riers, including AT&T, had assisted the NSA in post-9/11 foreign intelligence and counter-
26 terrorism activities. These press reports led to the private-party lawsuits with which this
27 Court already is familiar. In addition, they led to a coordinated campaign in which state
28 regulatory authorities were urged to use state law to investigate carriers that were believed

1 to have participated in the supposed NSA programs. See Press Release, ACLU Launches
2 Nationwide Action Against NSA Snooping on Americans' Phone Calls (May 24, 2006), at 3 www.aclu.org/safefree/nsaspying/25647prs20060524.html. Most state commissions have 4 properly refrained from opening investigations into the alleged cooperation between the
5 nation's telecommunications carriers and the NSA, as has the Federal Communications
6 Commission, which recognized that investigating classified intelligence programs is beyond
7 its purview. See Letter from Kevin J. Martin, Chairman, FCC, to the Hon. Edward J.
8 Markey (May 22, 2006) ("FCC Letter"), Ex. B, Dkt. 1-34. In the rare instance in which a 9 state official has taken a contrary approach, the United States has filed suit to halt state in-
10 trusion into its exclusive authority over military affairs and foreign intelligence.⁴

11 Here, two individual state public utilities commissioners (a minority of the five-12 member Missouri Commission) are attempting to investigate AT&T's alleged assistance in 13 NSA counterterrorism surveillance activities. They have done so alone, unsupported by 14 either the State of Missouri or a majority of the PSC. On June 19 and June 22, 2006, Plain-
15 tiffs issued on their own behalf subpoenas seeking information relating to AT&T's alleged
16 disclosure of customer call records to the NSA. See, e.g., Subpoena Ad Testificandum
17 ¶¶ 1-5, Dkt. 1-3, at 9; Subpoena Duces Tecum ¶¶ 1-4, Dkt. 1-3, at 12. The subpoenas pur-
18 port to compel AT&T to disclose a variety of details concerning its alleged participation in 19 the alleged programs, including "[t]he number of Missouri customers . . . whose calling re-
20 cords have been delivered to the [NSA]"; "[t]he date or dates on which [such] disclosures
21 . . . were made"; "[t]he nature or type of information disclosed to the NSA"; and "[t]he par-
22 ticular exchanges for which any number was disclosed to the NSA." Subpoena Ad Testifi-
23 candum ¶¶ 1, 3, 4, 5, Dkt. 1-3, at 9.

24 On July 11, 2006, the General Counsel of the Office of the Director of National In-

25 ⁴ There are currently five such cases, all of which have been transferred to this Court as part
26 of MDL-1791. See United States v. Gaw, No. 07-1242 (Missouri); United States v. Adams, 27 No. 07-1323 (Maine); United States v. Rabner, No. 07-1324 (New Jersey); United States v.
28 Palermينو, No. 07-1326 (Connecticut); United States v. Volz, No. 07-1396 (Vermont). As described infra at n.5, in Gaw the United States filed suit to prevent the enforcement of the same subpoenas that are at issue in this action.

1 intelligence instructed AT&T that compliance with the subpoenas would “place [AT&T] in a
2 position of having to confirm or deny the existence of information that cannot be confirmed
3 or denied without harming national security” and that “responding to[] the subpoenas would
4 be inconsistent with, and preempted by, federal law.” See Powell Letter, Dkt. 1-37. That 5 same day, AT&T submitted objections to Plaintiffs explaining why it could not comply.
6 See Letters from Paul G. Lane, AT&T Gen. Counsel-Missouri and Kansas, to PSC
7 Comm’rs Robert M. Clayton III and Steve Gaw (July 11, 2006), Ex. D, Dkt. 1-36. Plain-
8 tiffs did not engage in a meaningful dialogue with either AT&T or the federal government,
9 nor does it appear that they attempted to achieve consensus (or even a majority) with the 10 other three Commissioners; instead, they simply sought to force compliance with their indi-
11 vidually-issued subpoenas by filing suit in state court.

12 AT&T removed Plaintiffs’ action from Cole County Circuit Court to the United 13 States District Court for the Western District of Missouri on August 10, 2006 (Dkt. 1-1, at 14 1-6), and moved to dismiss shortly thereafter (Dkt. 1-41).⁵ While AT&T’s motion was 15 pending, on September 28, 2006, the JPML conditionally transferred the matter to this
16 Court. On January 31, 2007, the district court in Missouri dismissed all pending motions
17 without prejudice, apparently for docket management purposes. (Dkt. 1-94, at 15.) On 18 February 15, 2007, over Plaintiffs’ objection, the JPML transferred this case to the MDL.
19 Pursuant to this Court’s scheduling orders of February 20 and March 30, 2007 (MDL 1791 20 Dkts. 172, at 2, 225, at 5), AT&T now moves to dismiss Plaintiffs’ Application.

21 ARGUMENT

22 I. STATE AUTHORITIES LACK POWER UNDER THE CONSTITUTION TO 23 OVERSEE OR INVESTIGATE ALLEGED FEDERAL INTELLIGENCE 24 ACTIVITIES.

25 This action must be dismissed, first and foremost, because state officials lack any

26 ⁵ The United States independently filed suit to prevent the Plaintiffs from enforcing, and 27 AT&T from complying with, the subpoenas. See Gaw, No. 07-1242. That suit, originally 28 filed in the Eastern District of Missouri, also has been transferred to this Court as part of MDL 1791. It requests a declaration that the subpoenas are “invalid under, preempted by, and inconsistent with” federal law, as well as an injunction barring their enforcement. See Compl. Prayer ¶ 1, Gaw, No. 07-1242, Dkt. 1-1, at 13.

1 authority under the Constitution to oversee, investigate, or intrude into the exclusively fed-
2 eral realms of foreign intelligence or military activities. “This principle, which prohibits
3 state action that unduly interferes with the federal government’s authority over foreign af-
4 fairs[,] derives from both the text and structure of the Constitution.” See In re World War II
5 Era Japanese Forced Labor Litig., 164 F. Supp. 2d 1160, 1168 (N.D. Cal. 2001). The 6 United States Constitution vests exclusive power over defending the nation against foreign 7 attack—necessarily including intelligence-gathering related to that purpose—in the federal 8 government. Congress possesses the power to “provide for the common Defence,” to 9 “regulate Commerce with foreign Nations,” and to “declare War,” among other national-
10 security powers. U.S. Const. art. I, § 8, cls. 1, 3, 11; see id. § 8, cls. 4, 10; id. § 9, cl. 8.
11 The President is the Commander in Chief and is endowed with other related powers. Id.
12 art. II, § 2, cls. 1, 2; id. § 3. States, by contrast, are expressly prohibited from exercising
13 power in these realms. Id. art. I, § 10 (forbidding states from entering into treaties or alli-14 ances, granting letters of marque and reprisal, or engaging in war unless invaded).

15 The decision to vest sole responsibility in the federal government for defending the 16 nation was critical to the enactment of the Constitution: The experience of the Articles of 17 Confederation convinced the Framers that relations with the outside world, whether in the 18 form of national defense, warmaking or diplomacy, required a robust and unified national 19 response.⁶ Accordingly, it long has been recognized that “as a matter of ‘purely legal prin-
20 ciple . . . the Constitution . . . allotted to the federal government jurisdiction over foreign 21 commerce, foreign affairs and national defense.’” United States v. Maine, 420 U.S. 515, 22 522 (1975); see also Perpich v. Dep’t of Def., 496 U.S. 334, 353 (1990) (“several constitu-

23
24 ⁶ See The Federalist No. 42, at 264 (James Madison) (Clinton Rossiter ed., 1961) (The 25 power to “regulate the intercourse with foreign nations . . . forms an obvious and essential
26 branch of the federal administration. If we are to be one nation in any respect, it clearly 27 ought to be in respect to other nations.”); 1 The Records of the Federal Convention of 1787, 28 at 19 (Max Farrand ed., rev. ed. 1937) (Edmund Randolph) (“the confederation produced no security agai[nst] foreign invasion”); see also Hines v. Davidowitz, 312 U.S. 52, 63 n.9 (1941) (“The importance of national power in all matters relating to foreign affairs and the inherent danger of state action in this field are clearly developed in Federalist papers No. 3, 4, 5, 42 and 80.”).

1 tional provisions commit matters of foreign policy and military affairs to the exclusive con-
2 trol of the National Government”); Zschernig v. Miller, 389 U.S. 429, 432 (1968) (striking
3 down state law because it constituted “an intrusion by the State into the field of foreign af-
4 fairs which the Constitution entrusts to the President and the Congress”); Stehney v. Perry,
5 101 F.3d 925, 939 (3d Cir. 1996) (affirming the “exclusive federal responsibility in matters
6 of national security”).⁷ It was for precisely this reason that, in United States v. Adams, a
7 federal district court held—in this same context, where the Maine PUC sought to require
8 discovery from Verizon concerning its alleged participation in NSA activities—that “[it] is 9 painfully obvious that . . . the PUC is acting beyond its depth.” United States v. Adams, __
10 F. Supp. 2d __, 2007 WL 441876, No. 06-0097, at *9 (D. Me. filed Feb. 08, 2007).

11 To be sure, not every state action that merely touches upon national security or for-
12 eign affairs is foreclosed. See Am. Ins. Ass’n v. Garamendi, 539 U.S. 396, 418 (2003)
13 (“state action with more than incidental effect on foreign affairs is preempted”).⁸ But the 14 effect of the Plaintiffs’ actions here is hardly “incidental”: The acknowledged purpose of 15 the subpoenas is to compel the disclosure of information, if any, concerning the alleged 16 classified intelligence-gathering activities of an agency of the Department of Defense. E.g.,
17 Subpoena Ad Testificandum ¶ 3, Dkt. 1-3, at 9 (requesting testimony regarding “[t]he na-
18 ture or type of information disclosed to the NSA”). Indeed, Plaintiff Commissioner Clay-
19 ton has publicly admitted that he began his investigation precisely because of the media re-

20 ⁷ See also United States v. Pink, 315 U.S. 203, 233 (1942) (“Power over external affairs is 21 not shared by the States; it is vested in the national government exclusively.”); Hines, 312
22 U.S. at 63 (“Our system of government is such that the interest of the cities, counties and
23 states, no less than the interest of the people of the whole nation, imperatively requires that
24 federal power in the field affecting foreign relations be left entirely free from local interfer-
25 ence.”); United States v. Curtiss-Wright Exp. Corp., 299 U.S. 304, 316-18 (1936) (“The 26 powers to declare and wage war, to conclude peace, to make treaties, to maintain diplo-
27 matic relations with other sovereignties, if they had never been mentioned in the Constitu-28 tion, would have vested in the federal government as necessary concomitants of nationality.”); Nat’l Foreign Trade Council v. Natsios, 181 F.3d 38, 49-50 (1st Cir. 1999), aff’d on other grounds sub nom. Crosby v. Nat’l Foreign Trade Council, 530 U.S. 363 (2000).

⁸ Accord In re World War II Era, 164 F. Supp. 2d at 1171 (“[S]tates may legislate with respect to traditional state concerns, such as inheritance and property rights, even if the legislation has international implications, but such conduct is unconstitutional when it has more than an ‘incidental or indirect effect in foreign countries.’”).

1 ports about alleged disclosures to the NSA, and because he was “concerned about the lack
2 of oversight” of AT&T in its supposed cooperation with the federal government. Jemimah
3 Noonoo, Calling for the Truth: Missouri Wants to Know if Phone Companies Gave Data to
4 NSA, Columbia Missourian, Apr. 2, 2007, available at <http://www.columbiamissourian.com/news/story.php?ID=24997>. The disclosures Plaintiffs seek directly attack the secrecy
5 that is central to the NSA’s mission with the Department of Defense and to the federal gov-
6 ernment’s ability to gather foreign intelligence and protect our citizens from military
7 threats. See United States v. Curtiss-Wright Exp. Corp., 299 U.S. 304, 320 (1936) (“Se-
8 crecy in respect of information gathered by [the Executive Branch’s agents] may be highly 9 necessary, and the premature disclosure of it productive of harmful results.”); N.Y. Times
10 Co. v. United States, 403 U.S. 713, 728 (1971) (Stewart, J., concurring) (“[I]t is elementary
11 that the . . . maintenance of an effective national defense require[s] both confidentiality and 12 secrecy.”); United States v. Truong Dinh Hung, 629 F.2d 908, 913 (4th Cir. 1980)
13 (“[A]ttempts to counter foreign threats to the national security require the utmost stealth, 14 speed and secrecy.”).

15
16 Consistent with these first principles of the constitutional allocation of power, this
17 Court has held that the powers of national defense and foreign affairs are exclusively com-
18 mitted to the federal government. See In re World War II Era, 164 F. Supp. 2d at 1168
19 (“The Constitution allocates power for external affairs to the legislative and executive 20 branches of the national government and simultaneously prohibits the states from engaging 21 in activities that might interfere with the national government’s exercise of these powers.”).
22 On appeal, the Ninth Circuit affirmed that the state law at issue—which created a cause of 23 action against corporations that were implicated in slave labor during World War II—was 24 preempted because it “intrude[d] on the federal government’s exclusive power to make and 25 resolve war.” Deutsch, 324 F.3d at 712 (emphasis added). The Ninth Circuit recognized 26 that the “Supreme Court has long viewed the foreign affairs powers specified in the text of 27 the Constitution as reflections of a generally applicable constitutional principle that power
28 over foreign affairs is reserved to the federal government.” Id. at 709 (citing, inter alia,

1 Pink, 315 U.S. at 233); see also In re World War II Era, 164 F. Supp. 2d at 1168-69.
2 “While neither the Constitution nor the courts have defined the precise scope of the foreign
3 relations power that is denied to the states, it is clear that matters concerning war are part of 4 the inner core of this power.” Deutsch, 324 F.3d at 711. And the gathering of intelligence
5 about the nation’s foes—their plans, communications, and intentions—is and always has 6 been an inseparable and indispensable part of the conduct of war.

7 Importantly, both this Court and the Ninth Circuit rejected the argument that there
8 could be no preemption in the absence of a conflict between state law and a federal statute.
9 Rather, even “[i]n the absence of [federal authorization], states are prohibited from exercis-
10 ing foreign affairs powers.” Id. at 714; see also In re World War II Era, 164 F. Supp. 2d at 11 1168 (“[A]ll state action, whether or not consistent with current foreign policy, that dis-
12 torts the allocation of responsibility to the national government for the conduct of American 13 diplomacy is void as an unconstitutional infringement on an exclusively federal sphere of 14 responsibility.” (emphasis added)). This is because “the Constitution allocates the power
15 over foreign affairs to the federal government exclusively, and the power to make and re-
16 solve war, including the authority to resolve war claims, is central to the foreign affairs
17 power in the constitutional design.” Deutsch, 324 F.3d at 713-14.

18 Thus, in the specified realms that are reserved to the federal government, the States
19 simply have no role. This holding applies here directly. Plaintiffs seek to use their powers
20 under state law as members of the Missouri Public Service Commission to force disclosure
21 of information concerning the alleged military and foreign intelligence-gathering activities
22 of the United States. Because “[m]atters related to war”—which necessarily include intel-
23 ligence-gathering related to that purpose—“are for the federal government alone to ad-
24 dress,” id. at 712, Plaintiffs are disabled by the Constitution from acting here.

25 This disability is even more clear-cut where, as here, a State seeks to oversee the ac-
26 tivities of the federal government, violating long-established principles of inter-
27 governmental immunity. It is black-letter law, set forth nearly 200 years ago in McCulloch
28 v. Maryland, that “the states have no power, by taxation or otherwise, to retard, impede,

1 burden, or in any manner control, the operations of the constitutional laws enacted by con-
2 gress to carry into execution the powers vested in the general government.” 17 U.S. (4
3 Wheat.) 316, 436 (1819); see also Pink, 315 U.S. at 233 (“Power over external affairs is not
4 shared by the States; it is vested in the national government exclusively. It need not be so
5 exercised as to conform to state laws or state policies whether they be expressed in constitu-
6 tions, statutes, or judicial decrees.”). Thus, the Supreme Court held in In re Tarble, a case
7 closely analogous to this one, that state courts could not exercise their habeas corpus power
8 to examine or call into doubt federal military enlistments. This is because military mat-
9 ters—there, raising and supporting armies—fall “within the line of [the federal govern-
10 ment’s] duties; and its control over the subject is plenary and exclusive.” 80 U.S. (13
11 Wall.) 397, 408 (1871). The Court observed that “in times of great popular excitement,
12 there may be found in every State large numbers ready and anxious to embarrass the opera-
13 tions of the government, and easily persuaded to believe every step taken for the enforce-
14 ment of its authority illegal and void.” Id. If state authorities could intrude into spheres
15 reserved to the federal government, “[i]n many exigencies the measures of the National 16 government might in this way be entirely bereft of their efficacy and value.” Id. at 409. “It
17 is manifest that the powers of the National government could not be exercised with energy
18 and efficiency at all times, if its acts could be interfered with and controlled for any period 19 by officers or tribunals of another sovereignty.” Id.

20 For these same reasons, the Third Circuit has held that state law cannot interfere
21 with the exclusively federal functions of the NSA. In Stehney v. Perry, a plaintiff sued her
22 former employer, a New Jersey-based contractor for the NSA, for failing to comply with a
23 New Jersey employment law that bars the use of lie-detector tests as a condition of em-
24 ployment. 101 F.3d 925 (3d Cir. 1996). Department of Defense policy, by contrast, obli-
25 gated NSA personnel with access to classified materials, including private contractors, to 26 take a polygraph examination. Recognizing that the application of New Jersey law would 27 inhibit the NSA’s activities, the Third Circuit held that the state law must yield because it
28 would “prevent any New Jersey employer from serving as an NSA contractor, an impermis-

1 sible state interference with [the] exclusive federal responsibility in matters of national se-
2 curity.” Id. at 939. That holding is dispositive here: forcing companies that do business in
3 Missouri to disclose information which, if it existed, would serve to confirm or deny sus-
4 pected intelligence-gathering activities by the NSA—information the federal government
5 has deemed a state secret—would not only inhibit the NSA’s conduct of operations in Mis-
6 souri but also nationally. The Constitution unequivocally forbids such interference in the 7 “exclusively federal” field of national security. Id.; supra at 6-7 (citing cases); see also 8 United States v. Belmont, 301 U.S. 324, 332 (1937) (“[C]omplete power over international 9 affairs is in the national government and is not and cannot be subject to any curtailment or
10 interference on the part of the several states. . . . [I]n respect of our foreign relations gener-
11 ally, state lines disappear.”); North Dakota v. United States, 495 U.S. 423, 437-38 (1990)
12 (plurality) (“the States may not directly obstruct the activities of the Federal Government”);
13 id. at 451-52 (Brennan, J., concurring) (“those dealing with the Federal Government enjoy
14 immunity from state control . . . when a state law actually and substantially interferes with 15 specific federal programs”); United States v. New Mexico, 455 U.S. 720, 735 n.11 (1982)
16 (“[S]tate taxes . . . are constitutionally invalid if they . . . substantially interfere with [the 17 Federal Government’s] activities.”).

18 This case is controlled by the principles of Tarble and Stehney. If state courts may 19 not investigate federal military enlistments through their time-honored powers of habeas
20 corpus; and if they may not enforce against the NSA generally applicable employment stat-
21 utes enacted pursuant to basic state police powers; then, a fortiori, state officials may not 22 use regulatory subpoenas to investigate the suspected intelligence operations of the federal
23 government. In seeking to compel AT&T to provide information concerning the NSA’s
24 alleged counterterrorism and foreign intelligence activities, Plaintiffs have overstepped their 25 constitutional authority. Because the subpoenas purport to inquire into matters of exclu-
26 sively federal concern, they are without effect. See, e.g., Adams, 2007 WL 441876, at *8-9
27 (enjoining the Maine Commission from acting with regard to NSA activities).

28

1 II. FEDERAL STATUTES PROHIBIT THE PLAINTIFFS' ATTEMPTS TO
2 COMPEL DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION REGARDING TELECOM-
3 MUNICATIONS CARRIERS' ALLEGED ASSISTANCE TO THE NSA.

4 Even if Plaintiffs' efforts to investigate national security activities were not outside
5 their constitutional authority, the subpoenas would be preempted by federal law. As an ini-
6 tial matter, the subpoenas are displaced under the Supremacy Clause by virtue of the clear
7 conflict between what they seek to compel and what federal law prohibits. The subpoenas
8 impermissibly conflict with federal law for two independent reasons: (1) "'it is impossible
9 . . . to comply with both [the] state and federal requirements'" and (2) "'state law stands as 10 an obstacle to the accomplishment and execution of the full purposes and objectives of 11 Congress.'" Young v. Coloma-Agaran, 340 F.3d 1053, 1055-56 (9th Cir. 2003) (quoting 12 Freightliner Corp. v. Myrick, 514 U.S. 280, 287 (1995)).

13 In the first category, the subpoenas seek to compel the disclosure of information the 14 disclosure of which federal law forbids. This is therefore the quintessential case in which 15 "'compliance with both federal and state regulations is a physical impossibility.'" Hills-
16 borough County v. Automated Med. Labs., 471 U.S. 707, 713 (1985). AT&T cannot com-
17 ply with both the subpoenas and with 18 U.S.C. § 798(a), which makes it a federal crime to 18 disclose to unauthorized persons classified information relating to communications intelli-
19 gence.⁹ Plaintiffs have never contended that they are authorized by federal law to receive 20 such information, and so any information responsive to the subpoenas would be forbidden.
21 The United States has thus stated directly that "[p]roviding responses to the Subpoenas 22 would be inconsistent with and would violate . . . 18 U.S.C. § 798." Compl. ¶ 47, United
23 States v. Gaw, No. 07-1242, Dkt. 1-1, at 12.¹⁰

24 ⁹ Section 798(a)(3) prohibits "knowingly and willfully communicat[ing], furnish[ing],
25 transmit[ing], or otherwise mak[ing] available to an unauthorized person, or publish[ing],
26 or us[ing] in any manner prejudicial to the safety or interest of the United States, . . . any 27 classified information . . . concerning the communication intelligence activities of the 28 United States." 18 U.S.C. § 798(a)(3). "Communication intelligence" refers to "all proce-
29 dures and methods used in the interception of communications and the obtaining of infor-
30 mation from such communications by other than the intended recipients." Id. § 798(b)
31 (emphases added).

32 ¹⁰ Congress created limited exceptions to this categorical bar on disclosure but, signifi-
33 cantly, not for unauthorized disclosure to state officers. See 18 U.S.C. § 798(c) ("Nothing
34 (continued...)

1 For similar reasons, AT&T cannot comply with the subpoenas without running
2 afoul of section 6 of the National Security Agency Act of 1959, Pub. L. No. 83-36, § 6, 73
3 Stat. 63, 64 (codified at 50 U.S.C. § 402 note). That statute broadly prohibits the disclosure
4 of any information regarding the NSA’s activities: “[N]othing in this Act or any other law
5 . . . shall be construed to require the disclosure of the organization or any other function of 6 the National Security Agency, [or] of any information with respect to the activities
7 thereof . . .” Id. (emphases added). “The protection afforded by section 6 is, by its very 8 terms, absolute.” Linder v. NSA, 94 F.3d 693, 698 (D.C. Cir. 1996). This is no accident. In 9 enacting section 6, Congress was “fully aware of the ‘unique and sensitive activities of the 10 [NSA],’ which require ‘extreme security measures.’” Hayden v. NSA, 608 F.2d 1381, 1390
11 (D.C. Cir. 1979). The statute thus “reflects . . . a congressional judgment that, in order to 12 preserve national security, information elucidating the subjects specified ought to be safe
13 from forced exposure.” Founding Church of Scientology v. NSA, 610 F.2d 824, 828, 830
14 n.50 (D.C. Cir. 1979) (“the techniques of the NSA are of the most sensitive and fragile 15 character”).

16 It is clear from the face of the subpoenas that Plaintiffs would have AT&T make
17 precisely the sort of disclosures that, as federal authorities have instructed AT&T, section 6
18 prohibits. The Subpoena Ad Testificandum, for instance, seeks testimony regarding “[t]he 19 number of Missouri customers, if any, whose calling records have been delivered or other-
20 wise disclosed to the [NSA]”; “[t]he nature or type of information disclosed to the NSA”;
21 and, “[t]he particular exchanges for which any number was disclosed to the NSA.” Sub-
22 poena Ad Testificandum ¶¶ 1, 3, 5, Dkt.1-3, at 9. These requests plainly demand “informa-
23 tion with respect to the activities” of the NSA. 50 U.S.C. § 402 note; cf. Hayden, 608 F.2d 24 at 1389 (interpreting section 6: “[R]elease of the documents would disclose a function of

25 _____
26 in this section shall prohibit the furnishing, upon lawful demand, of information to any 27 regularly constituted committee of the Senate or House of Representatives of the United 28 States of America, or joint committee thereof.”); see also Boudette v. Barnette, 923 F.2d 754, 756-57 (9th Cir. 1991) (with respect to “a statute [that] designates certain . . . manners of operation, all omissions should be understood as exclusions”).

1 the NSA, since signals intelligence is one of the Agency's primary functions; and would
2 disclose information with respect to Agency activities, since any information about an in-
3 tercepted communication concerns an NSA activity").

4 The United States has formally affirmed that disclosing this information would vio-
5 late section 6. See Compl. ¶ 47, United States v. Gaw, No. 07-1242, Dkt. 1-1, at 12; see
6 also Powell Letter, Dkt. 1-37. The FCC has likewise recognized that because it "has no
7 power to order the production of classified information," and because section 6 prohibits
8 the disclosure of information relating to NSA activities, it lacks authority to compel the 9 production of the information necessary to investigate the alleged NSA programs. See FCC
10 Letter at 2, Dkt. 1-34. If the FCC, a federal agency that has express statutory authority to 11 regulate carriers under federal law, see, e.g., 47 U.S.C. §§ 151-152, 201 et seq., cannot in-
12 vestigate this matter without running afoul of federal protections for intelligence informa-
13 tion, then a fortiori the Plaintiffs cannot do so on the basis of state regulatory provisions.¹¹

14 Furthermore, the subpoenas are preempted because they "stand[] as an obstacle to 15 the accomplishment and execution of the full purposes and objectives of Congress."
16 Young, 340 F.3d at 1056. A conflict of this sort arises when state law "impose[s] . . . addi-
17 tional conditions not contemplated by Congress." Sperry v. Florida, 373 U.S. 379, 385
18 (1963). Permitting enforcement of the subpoenas would impose "additional conditions"
19 upon the NSA's conduct of foreign intelligence-gathering: If telecommunication carriers
20 were subject to state investigations and liability for alleged cooperation with national secu-
21 rity agencies, those agencies would have the burden of responding to state as well as federal 22 oversight and ensuring that their own conduct (as well as the conduct of any partners in the

23
24 ¹¹ As regards section 6, this situation is therefore quite unlike Hepting v. AT&T Corp.,
25 where this Court found section 6 inapplicable because it concluded that the private plain-
26 tiffs might support their claims with unclassified information. 439 F. Supp. 2d 974, 998
27 (N.D. Cal. 2006) ("plaintiffs could rely on many non-classified materials including present
28 and future public disclosures of the government or AT&T on the alleged NSA programs, the AT&T documents and the supporting Klein and Marcus declarations and information gathered during discovery"), appeal docketed, Nos. 06-60809, 06-60810 (9th Cir. Aug. 1, 2006). Even assuming that analysis were correct, the subpoenas here directly seek information that, if it existed, would fall directly within Section 6's prohibitions.

1 private sector) satisfied the numerous, varied, and sometimes conflicting requirements of all
2 fifty States. See Chlorine Inst. Inc. v. California Highway Patrol, 29 F.3d 495, 498 (9th
3 Cir. 1994) (federal law preempted state regulations that “impose[d] substantial require-
4 ments additional to those imposed by” federal law); Bonito Boats, Inc. v. Thunder Craft
5 Boats, Inc., 489 U.S. 141, 161 (1989) (preemption analysis must consider the “prospect” of 6 action by “all 50 States”). These “additional conditions” would make no functional sense
7 in the context of foreign intelligence activities and manifestly were not contemplated by 8 Congress. See United States v. Kimbell Foods, 440 U.S. 715, 728 (1979) (“Undoubtedly,
9 federal programs that ‘by their nature are and must be uniform in character throughout the 10 Nation’ necessitate the formulation of controlling federal rules.”).

11 On the contrary, both the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (“FISA”), 50 U.S.C.
12 § 1801 et seq., and Title III of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act (“Title
13 III”), 18 U.S.C. § 2510 et seq., already specify the manner in which the disclosure of cus-
14 tomer calling information is to be overseen—namely, through committees of the United 15 States Congress and other federal instrumentalities. See 18 U.S.C. § 2519; 50 U.S.C.
16 §§ 1807, 1808, 1826, 1846, 1862 (requiring reports to Congress and the Administrative Of-
17 fice of the U.S. Courts); see also United States v. Koyomejian, 946 F.2d 1450, 1456 (9th
18 Cir. 1992) (“[C]ongressional debate leading to the enactment of FISA focused on striking a
19 balance between the privacy interests of individuals and the government’s needs—here,
20 those of national security.”). When Congress makes a policy choice of this kind, state ac-
21 tion that has the effect of revisiting, altering, or second-guessing it is preempted. See 22 Crosby v. Nat’l Foreign Trade Council, 530 U.S. 363, 379-80 (2000) (“The conflicts are 23 not rendered irrelevant by the State’s argument that there is no real conflict between the 24 statutes because they share the same goals. . . . The fact of a common end hardly neutralizes
25 conflicting means”); see also Bonito Boats, 489 U.S. at 152 (States may not “second-
26 guess” a balance struck by Congress).

27

28

1 III. BECAUSE FEDERAL STATUTES OCCUPY THE FIELD OF TELECOMM-
2 UNICATIONS CARRIERS' ALLEGED ASSISTANCE TO THE NSA, THE
3 SUBPOENAS ARE PREEMPTED.

4 In addition, the subpoenas are preempted because Congress has occupied the field
5 of telecommunications carriers' cooperation with federal intelligence agencies. Pursuant to 6 the Supremacy Clause, Congress can occupy an entire field of law, and thereby preempt the 7 enforcement of related state laws and regulations, (1) "where an Act of Congress 'touch[es]
8 a field in which the federal interest is so dominant that the federal system will be assumed
9 to preclude enforcement of state laws on the same subject" or (2) where the "scheme of fed-
10 eral regulation [is] so pervasive as to make reasonable the inference that Congress left no
11 room for the States to supplement it." English v. Gen. Elec. Co., 496 U.S. 72, 79 (1990).
12 Both are true here.

13 As set forth above, see supra Section I, the federal government has not only a
14 "dominant," but indeed an exclusive, interest in the field of foreign intelligence-gathering,
15 whether in support of diplomacy or the conduct of hostilities. See, e.g., Murphy v. Water-
16 front Comm'n, 378 U.S. 52, 76 n.16 (1964). This exclusive constitutional power has been
17 given effect in the precise field the Missouri PSC Commissioners seek to invade here
18 through a set of interlocking statutes that regulate the provision of assistance by telecom-
19 munications carriers to federal authorities. In general terms, these statutes include the 20 Communications Assistance to Law Enforcement Act ("CALEA"), 47 U.S.C. § 1001 et
21 seq., the Stored Communications Act ("SCA"), 18 U.S.C. § 2701 et seq., Title III, 18
U.S.C. § 2510 et seq., and FISA, 50 U.S.C. § 1801 *et seq.*¹² Although these statutes un-

22 ¹² Together these statutes impose technical requirements on telecommunications carriers,
23 see, e.g., 47 U.S.C. §§ 1002, 1004, 1005; specify the circumstances under which they may
24 (or must) provide designated types of customer information to the federal government, 18
25 U.S.C. §§ 2702, 2703; id. § 2511(2); 50 U.S.C. § 1802(a)(4) (permitting the Attorney Gen-26 eral to "direct" carriers to participate in warrantless electronic surveillance); id.
27 § 1805(c)(2)(B) (governing carrier participation in court-approved electronic surveillance);
28 and include civil and criminal enforcement mechanisms for the statutory requirements, 18
U.S.C. §§ 2520, 2522, 2707; 50 U.S.C. §§ 1809, 1810, 1827, 1828; see also H.R. Rep. No.
103-827, pt. 1, at 28 (1994) ("[i]n order to avoid disparate enforcement actions throughout the country which could be burdensome for telecommunications carriers, this authority is vested in the Attorney General of the United States"), as well as special litigation immuni-ties for cooperating carriers, see, e.g., 18 U.S.C. §§ 2511, 2520(d), and 2707(e).

1 doubtedly leave room for state regulation or supplementation on these subjects in areas of
2 state concern, such as the conduct of state investigations by state law enforcement officers,
3 none remotely suggests that the states may impose independent requirements (of disclosure
4 or otherwise) on federal officials carrying out exclusively federal functions, or on private
5 parties allegedly cooperating with such officials. In this field, federal law supplies the ex-
6 clusive rules.

7 In enacting FISA specifically, “Congress believed it was completely regulating elec-
8 tronic surveillance in . . . foreign intelligence-gathering.” Koyomejian, 946 F.2d at 1456
9 (emphasis added) (noting that FISA contains a “detailed set of procedural requirements” for 10 the conduct by federal agencies of national security surveillance). Likewise, in the SCA,
11 “‘Congress “left no room” for supplementary state regulation”’ of federal activities. Quon
12 v. Arch Wireless Operating Co., 445 F. Supp. 2d 1116, 1137 (C.D. Cal. 2006); see also 13 Muskovich v. Crowell, No. 3-95-CV-80007, 1995 WL 905403, at *1 (S.D. Iowa Mar. 21, 14 1995) (“In section 2708, Congress unequivocally expressed an intent to ‘occupy the field’
15 and provide the exclusive remedies . . .”).

16 This Court’s discussion of these statutes in the different context of “complete pre-
17 emption” is not to the contrary. See In re NSA Telecomms. Records Litig., No. 06-1791-
18 VRW, 2007 WL 163106, at *3-5 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 18, 2007). Unlike the commonplace de-19 fense of field preemption, “complete preemption” is a jurisdictional doctrine that arises in 20 different circumstances and employs a different test. See Balcorta v. Twentieth Century-
21 Fox Film Corp., 208 F.3d 1102, 1107 n.7 (9th Cir. 2000) (the “‘complete preemption’ doc-
22 trine is actually a doctrine of jurisdiction and is not to be confused with ordinary preemp-
23 tion doctrine (although it is related to preemption law)”; see also In re Miles, 430 F.3d
24 1083, 1088 (9th Cir. 2005) (citing Caterpillar Inc. v. Williams, 482 U.S. 386, 393 (1987));
25 Wayne v. DHL Worldwide Express, 294 F.3d 1179, 1183-84 (9th Cir. 2002); Sullivan v.
26 Am. Airlines, Inc., 424 F.3d 267, 273 n.7 (2d Cir. 2005) (despite confusion in the law be-27 tween complete preemption and field preemption, “[t]he two types of preemption are . . .
28 better considered distinct.”). Although AT&T continues to believe that there is complete

1 preemption of state law remedies for jurisdictional purposes, this Court’s contrary ruling
2 does not reject the possibility of ordinary field preemption. The Court regarded the authori-
3 ties and materials it cited in support of its ruling on complete preemption—such as
4 § 1806(f)’s application to certain state-court litigation related to “electronic surveillance” or 5 § 1861 of FISA—as indicating that Congress took sufficient cognizance of state law and 6 process to preserve concurrent judicial jurisdiction, but those provisions in no way suggest
7 that substantive state law may govern the activities of federal officers or their agents con-
8 ducting exclusively federal functions such as gathering foreign intelligence. As to that very
9 different question, there is not a shred of evidence that Congress contemplated that state
10 law requirements, whether disclosure requirements or otherwise, could be imposed over 11 and above the requirements that Congress itself imposed in federal statutes. Federal offi-
12 cers performing federal functions are governed by federal law. To the extent that state law
13 is deployed to impose oversight of federal activities beyond that provided for in federal stat-
14 utes, it is displaced.

15 IV. ENFORCEMENT OF THE SUBPOENAS IS PREEMPTED BY FEDERAL 16 COMMON LAW.

17 Even if the complex of federal statutes described above left gaps relating to the pro-
18 vision of assistance by telecommunications carriers to the federal defense or intelligence
19 establishments, those gaps would be filled not by state law but by federal common law.
20 “[A] few areas, involving ‘uniquely federal interests,’ are so committed by the Constitution
21 and laws of the United States to federal control that state law is pre-empted and replaced,
22 where necessary, by federal law of a content prescribed (absent explicit statutory directive)
23 by courts—so-called ‘federal common law.’” Boyle v. United Techs. Corp., 487 U.S. 500,
24 504 (1988) (citation omitted). The federal interest in military and intelligence activities de-
25 signed to protect the nation from attack is the quintessential example. See, e.g., MITE
26 Corp. v. Dixon, 633 F.2d 486, 491 (7th Cir. 1980) (“In the realms of national security and 27 foreign affairs, state legislation has been held implicitly preempted because both areas are 28 of unquestionably vital significance to the nation as a whole.”), aff’d on other grounds sub

1 nom. Edgar v. MITE Corp., 457 U.S. 624 (1982); AMCA Int’l Corp. v. Krouse, 482 F.
2 Supp. 929, 934 (S.D. Ohio 1979) (“There is an overriding federal interest in the spheres of
3 foreign affairs and national security.”). Indeed, in New SD, Inc. v. Rockwell Int’l Corp., 79
4 F.3d 953 (9th Cir. 1996), the Ninth Circuit held that “on government contract matters hav-
5 ing to do with national security, state law is totally displaced by federal common law.” Id.
6 at 955. The Court recognized that “[w]here the federal interest”—“national security”—
7 “requires that ‘the rule must be uniform throughout the country,’ . . . then the ‘entire body
8 of state law applicable to the area conflicts and is replaced by federal rules.’” Id. (quoting
9 Am. Pipe & Steel Corp. v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., 292 F.2d 640, 643 (9th Cir. 1961),
10 and Boyle, 487 U.S. at 508).

11 Two related but distinct federal common-law doctrines, which are of central rele-
12 vance to the proper disposition of Plaintiffs’ claims, demonstrate that federal common law
13 suffuses the realm of federal intelligence activities such that state law has no room to oper-
14 ate. These are the state secrets doctrine and the Totten bar, with which the Court is already
15 familiar. Whether or not either or both of these doctrines would independently bar a state
16 public utility commission from investigating alleged cooperation by telecommunications
17 carriers in an NSA call records program—and there is considerable reason, including this
18 Court’s own ruling in Hepting, to believe that they would—the existence of these doctrines 19 establishes the uniquely federal nature of the interest in foreign intelligence activities and 20 the independent preemptive force of federal law in this area.

21 The state secrets privilege is a common-law evidentiary privilege “protect[ing] mili-
22 tary and state secrets” from being disclosed. United States v. Reynolds, 345 U.S. 1, 7
23 (1953); see also Kasza v. Browner, 133 F.3d 1159, 1165 (9th Cir. 1998) (“The state secrets
24 privilege is a common law evidentiary privilege that allows the government to deny discov-
25 ery of military secrets.”). The privilege has a constitutional, separation-of-powers founda-
26 tion, deriving from the President’s Article II authority over the nation’s diplomatic and 27 military affairs. See United States v. Nixon, 418 U.S. 683, 710 (1974); Reynolds, 345 U.S.
28 at 7-8. It prevents, among other harms to national security, the disclosure of information

1 that might impair “the nation’s defense capabilities” or reveal “intelligence-gathering
2 methods or capabilities.” In re United States, 872 F.2d 472, 476 (D.C. Cir. 1989) (quoting
3 Molerio v. FBI, 749 F.2d 815, 820-21 (D.C. Cir. 1984) (Scalia, J.)); see also Sterling v.
4 Tenet, 416 F.3d 338, 346 (4th Cir. 2005), cert. denied, 126 S. Ct. 1052 (2006). This Court
5 has already addressed the United States’ state secrets assertion over the very type of infor-
6 mation demanded by Plaintiffs through their subpoenas and held that such information can-
7 not be disclosed. See Hepting v. AT&T, 439 F. Supp. 2d 974, 998 (N.D. Cal. 2006) (“pres-
8 ently declin[ing] to permit any discovery regarding the alleged communication records pro-
9 gram”), appeal docketed, Nos. 06-60809, 06-60810 (9th Cir. Aug. 1, 2006). And each of
10 the other federal courts that has considered a claim by the United States that the state se-
11 crets privilege prevents disclosure of any information concerning an alleged call records
12 program has agreed and held that this information cannot be revealed.¹³ These rulings un-
13 derscore that disclosure of the information Plaintiffs seek would conflict with the para-
14 mount interests of national security—undoubtedly a uniquely federal interest. See In re
15 NSA Telecomm. Records Litig., 2007 WL 163106, at *6 (“The court agrees with defendants
16 that the state secrets privilege plays a unique role in the present cases.”). Plaintiffs’ efforts
17 to use state regulatory subpoenas to obtain this information are therefore preempted.

18 Likewise, Totten v. United States, 92 U.S. 105 (1875), establishes a rule of federal
19 common law that suits—like this one—premised on the alleged existence of a secret espio-
20 nage relationship are non-justiciable. While this Court under similar circumstances in 21 Hepting found that the facts of Totten were “not strictly analogous,” Hepting, 439 F. Supp.
22 2d at 991, compliance with the subpoenas would require confirming or denying the exis-

23 ¹³ See ACLU v. NSA, 438 F. Supp. 2d 754, 766 (E.D. Mich. 2006) (“[T]he court holds that
24 the state secrets privilege applies to Plaintiffs’ data-mining claim and that claim is dis-
25 missed.”), appeal docketed, Nos. 06-2099, 06-2140 (6th Cir. Aug. 17, 2006); Terkel v.
26 AT&T Corp., 441 F. Supp. 2d 899, 917 (N.D. Ill. 2006) (“[T]he Court is persuaded that re-
27 quiring AT&T to confirm or deny whether it has disclosed large quantities of telephone re-28 cords to the federal government could give adversaries of this country valuable insight into the government’s intelligence activities. Because requiring such disclosures would therefore adversely affect our national security, such disclosures are barred by the state secrets privilege.”).

tence of a relationship involving “secret services for the government” within the meaning of Totten, 92 U.S. at 107, and Tenet v. Doe, 544 U.S. 1, 8 (2005). It would be impossible to disclose “[t]he number of Missouri customers . . . whose calling records have been delivered to the [NSA]”; “[t]he date or dates on which [such] disclosures . . . were made”; “[t]he nature or type of information disclosed to the NSA”; or “[t]he particular exchanges for which any number was disclosed to the NSA,” Subpoena Ad Testificandum ¶¶ 1, 3, 4, 5, Dkt. 1-3, at 9, without confirming or denying the existence of a relationship between AT&T and the NSA involving covert intelligence activities. Totten makes clear that federal common law operates to forbid such inquiries, as the Fourth Circuit recently held. See El-Masri v. United States, __ F.3d __, 2007 WL 625130, at *9 (4th Cir. Mar. 2, 2007) (holding, with respect to alleged espionage contracts to which plaintiff was not a party, that plaintiff “would have to demonstrate the existence and details of CIA espionage contracts, an endeavor practically indistinguishable from that categorically barred by Totten”).

V. PLAINTIFFS DO NOT HAVE AUTHORITY UNDER STATE LAW TO ENFORCE THE SUBPOENAS IN ANY EVENT.

Finally, this action must be dismissed because Plaintiffs have no statutory authority under Missouri law to bring their Application. When lack of capacity is clear from the complaint, dismissal under Rule 12(b) is proper. See Coburn v. Coleman, 75 F. Supp. 107, 109 (D.S.C. 1947) (dismissing suit where plaintiff lacked capacity to sue under state law); 5A Charles A. Wright et al., Federal Practice and Procedure § 1360 (2d ed. 1990). Although Plaintiffs purport to have brought suit pursuant to RSMo. § 536.077, see Application at 2, Dkt. 1-6, at 17,¹⁴ this provision by its plain terms applies only to subpoenas issued within the context of a “contested case,” and therefore may not be used to enforce subpoe-

¹⁴ Plaintiffs also cite Missouri Rules of Civil Procedure 58.01 and 61.01 as authority for this action. See Application at 2, Dkt. 1-6, at 17. As this case is pending in federal court, the relevance of the Missouri Rules of Civil Procedure is unclear. In any event, Rules 58.01 and 61.01 on their face do not apply here, as they pertain only to requests for production issued pursuant to a pending civil action. See Mo. R. Civ. P. 58.01(b)(2) (request for production may be served on a plaintiff after an action is commenced, or on any other party after process has been served, an appearance has been entered, or a pleading has been filed); id. 61.01(d) (authorizing the court to issue an order compelling compliance with Rule 58.01 request for production).

1 nas, like these, that are investigative. See Brooks v. Pool-Leffler, 636 S.W.2d 113, 121
2 (Mo. Ct. App. 1982), recognized as abrogated by statute on other grounds, Gerlach v. Mo.
3 Comm’n on Human Rights, 980 S.W.2d 589, 592 (Mo. Ct. App. 1998); see also 20 Mis-
4 souri Practice, Administrative Practice & Procedure § 10.40 (14th ed. 2007) (“an agency
5 could not rely on § 536.077 subpoena power to subpoena witnesses for an investigation”).
6 Plaintiffs themselves admit that the subpoenas here were not issued in the context of a con-
7 tested case, but rather are “investigative subpoenas.” See Sugg. in Supp. of Mot. for Re-
8 mand of Proceeding to State Court and Req. for Oral Argument and Expedited Treatment,
9 Dkt. 1-27, at 2. This admission is plainly correct: A contested case is “a proceeding before
10 an agency in which legal rights, duties or privileges of specific parties are required by law
11 to be determined after hearing.” RSMo. § 536.010(4). A hearing required by law is one
12 that must be held before an agency where a record will be made. Hagely v. Bd. of Educ., 13 841 S.W.2d 663, 668 (Mo. 1992). It is essential that the hearing be adversarial. City of 14 Richmond Heights v. Bd. of Equalization, 586 S.W.2d 338, 342-43 (Mo. 1979). Moreover,
15 there must be formal procedures such as notice of the hearing, the presentation of oral evi-
16 dence, examination and cross-examination of witnesses, the use of exhibits, and evidentiary
17 rules. Rackley v. Firemen’s Ret. Sys., 848 S.W.2d 26, 28 (Mo. Ct. App. 1993). Conversely, 18 non-contested cases are ““decisions which are not required by law to be determined after 19 hearing.”” Hagely, 841 S.W.2d at 667. Plaintiffs do not allege that a hearing of any kind 20 was required prior to issuance of the subpoenas, and no hearing was in progress when the 21 subpoenas were authorized, much less with formal procedures required or observed. Be-
22 cause the subpoenas at issue here are purely investigative in nature, Plaintiffs may not use
23 § 536.077 to enforce them.

24 The only other authorities cited by Plaintiffs for bringing this enforcement action are
25 RSMo. §§ 386.320 and 386.420. See Application at 2, Dkt. 1-6, at 17. While these statutes
26 grant authority to individual commissioners to issue subpoenas or to take depositions in cer-
27 tain circumstances (the former statute in investigative actions, the latter in contested cases),
28 neither purports to bestow power on an individual commissioner to initiate court action to

1 enforce compliance with a subpoena. As is the case in the United States Congress, the
2 more serious coercive power to enforce a subpoena is vested in the PSC as a whole, not in
3 the individual commissioners that might have issued the subpoena in the first instance.¹⁵
4 See RSMo. §§ 386.130, 386.360. Before the coercive power of the State is deployed to 5 compel the compliance of an unwilling private party, the State must act in a democratically
6 legitimate way, and the PSC must speak as an official body. The chaos of individual com-
7 missioners filing court actions, perhaps at cross-purposes with one another, is neither con-
8 templated nor permitted under state law.

9 Thus, the only statute that addresses authority to enforce, rather than issue, investi-
10 gative subpoenas requires action by the full PSC rather than its individual commissioners.
11 Section 386.360.1 permits the PSC to sue a public utility for an injunctive order or in man-
12 damus whenever “the commission shall be of the opinion” that doing so is necessary to pre-
13 vent any “violation of law.” Id. (emphasis added). The language of this section plainly re-
14 quires such actions to be brought on behalf of the PSC as a whole: The section states that 15 the general counsel of the PSC “shall” file such suits “in the name of the commission,” id.
16 (emphases added). “[T]he word ‘shall’ connotes a mandatory duty.” State ex rel. City of 17 Blue Springs v. Rice, 853 S.W.2d 918, 920 (Mo. 1993). Under § 386.130, “[a] majority of 18 the commissioners” is required “for the exercise of any power of the commission,” includ-
19 ing the aforementioned power to enforce a subpoena. RSMo. § 386.130; see also State ex
20 rel. Philipp Transit Lines, Inc. v. Pub. Serv. Comm’n, 552 S.W.2d 696, 701 n.4 (Mo. 1977)
21 (powers and duties of commissions may not be exercised by individual members but only 22 by commission with quorum and majority vote, especially where acts involving discretion
23 and judgment, particularly in a judicial or quasi-judicial capacity, are at issue); Brooks, 636
24 S.W.2d at 118 n.7 (referring to “the Commission’s power to . . . obtain judicial enforcement

25
26 ¹⁵ In Congress, subpoenas may be issued by individual committees or subcommittees under 27 both House and Senate rules, and this power may be, and often is, delegated to individual 28 chairmen. See generally H.R. Rule XI(2)(m)(l); S. Rule XXVI(1). However, judicial proceedings to enforce such subpoenas can only be initiated by a vote of the entire House or Senate. See generally 2 U.S.C. §§ 192-194; 288b(b); 288d; 28 U.S.C. § 1365.

1 of [a] subpoena” and “the authority to enforce the subpoena” of a “governmental body”
2 (emphases added)).

3 Missouri law is clear that plaintiffs thus cannot bring suit in their own names to en-
4 force subpoenas, and this incapacity independently requires dismissal. “[W]here a stat-
5 ute . . . points out the persons who may sue, they and they alone can sue.” Superior Miner-
6 als Co. v. Mo. Pac. R.R., 45 S.W.2d 912, 914 (Mo. Ct. App. 1932); see 15 Missouri Prac-
7 tice, Civil Rules Practice §§ 52.01-8 & -9 (3d ed. 2006); see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 17(b)
8 (“The capacity of an individual . . . to sue or be sued shall be determined by the law of the 9 individual’s domicile.”). And, when a party without statutory authority sues, its petition
10 “will state no cause of action” and dismissal is appropriate. Superior Minerals, 45 S.W.2d
11 at 914; see Moore v. Mitchell, 281 U.S. 18, 23-24 (1930) (dismissing suit due to plaintiff’s 12 lack of capacity); see also Asbestos Worker Syracuse Pension Fund ex rel. Collins v. M.G.
13 Indus. Insulation Co., 875 F. Supp. 132, 141-42 (N.D.N.Y. 1995) (dismissing suit for lack 14 of capacity where plaintiff failed to obtain necessary authorization to file action); Coburn,
15 75 F. Supp. at 109. These rules have particular force in this context, because under Mis-
16 souri law, agencies have no inherent subpoena power, and accordingly may issue and en-
17 force subpoenas only as authorized by statute. See Brooks, 636 S.W.2d at 119. For this 18 reason too, the Application must be dismissed.

19 CONCLUSION

20 For the foregoing reasons, Plaintiffs’ Application should be dismissed.

21 //

22 //

23 //

24 //

25 //

26 //

27 //

28 //

1 Dated: April 9, 2007

2

Respectfully submitted,

3

PILLSBURY WINTHROP
SHAW PITTMAN LLP
4 BRUCE A. ERICSON
DAVID L. ANDERSON
5 JACOB R. SORESENSEN
MARC H. AXELBAUM
6 DANIEL J. RICHERT
50 Fremont Street
7 Post Office Box 7880
San Francisco, CA 94120-7880

SIDLEY AUSTIN LLP
DAVID W. CARPENTER*
BRADFORD A. BERENSON*
DAVID L. LAWSON*
EDWARD R. MCNICHOLAS*
ERIC A. SHUMSKY
1501 K Street, N.W.
Washington, DC 20005

* admitted pro hac vice

8

9

By /s/ Marc H. Axelbaum
Marc H. Axelbaum

By /s/ Bradford A. Berenson
Bradford A. Berenson

10

Attorneys for AT&T Defendants

11

12

DECLARATION PURSUANT TO GENERAL ORDER 45, § X.B

13

I, MARC H. AXELBAUM, hereby declare pursuant to General Order 45, § X.B, that I have obtained the concurrence in the filing of this document from the other signatory

14

15 listed above.

16

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing declaration is true and correct.

17

Executed on April 9, 2007, at San Francisco, California.

18

/s/ Marc H. Axelbaum
Marc H. Axelbaum

19

20

21

22

23

24

25

26

27

28

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28